HONGKONG, APRIL 11TH, 1889. THE Straits Government has of late been directing a good deal of grandmotherly at tention to the welfare and protection of the members of the Civil Service in that colony A fortnight ago a Bill was introduced in the Legislative Council providing that members | men's Club for selling liquor to outsiders. The of the service in receipt of salaries below $150 a month shall not be subject to actions at law for the recovery of pecuniary liabilities they may have incurred. Closely following this extraordinary measure a set of regulations has been published prohibiting public servants engaging in agricultural or, a fine cast iron ornamental vorandah, carried up this agreement the plaintiff was precluded from commercial pursuits or becoming the possessors of lauded property. With the general idea underlying these regulations everyone will agree-trade and speculation are in fact prohibited to public servants everywhere—but in detail they are worked out with such an absence of common sense that we find it difficult to understand how they could have been passed by a level-A full ('tronology of remarkable events since headed Governor like Sir Cecil Smith, the ad ent of foreigners to China and Japan. The regulations are based, as the preamble informs us, " on the principle that greater efficiency may be expected from an Officer whose whole energies are devoted to the Scales of Commissions and Charges adopted by Public Service, than from one whose mind is occupied with the cares and anxieties in cident to the possession and cultivation of land or to commercial enterprises. It is considered that the Officer who is content to look for advancement solely to his official having a mmercial or political relations with the occupation has a stronger claimson the public Countrie embraced within the scope of the and on his superiors than one who seeks to ever, a thick fog outside. The management of commercial undertakings certainly ought to be prohibited to public cervants. Even private amployers object as a rule totheir employés engaging in other business pursuits than those of their own office, and very reasonably so ... We have never heard; however, of a private employer objecting to his employé investing his savings in house property, nor do we understand on what reasonable principle he could do so. The order of the Governor of the Straits Settlements, however, is that no officer is to be the owner of house property other than a house for his in her turn, stabled in the abdoings by the Company could terminate the agreement at any own occupation. Supposing a man buys or furious villain, who then tried to run away, builds a house for his own occupation, and subsequently, with an increasing family or an improvement in his position, he wishes to remove to a superior residence, is he to be compelled to sell his old one, in spite of the fact that he might find it more profitable to | Street Station." Rules of H.B.M. Supreme and other Courts | keep it? A law or regulation that cannot be made to work out fairly in any ordinary case to which it may have to be applied is obviously unsound. And the further we read the more unsound the regulations appear The prohibition of the ownership of house THE PROSECUTION OF THE LEAGUE property is not to apply to native officers in the colony or protected native states. This is precisely the class for which we should have thought such a regulation was most necessary, if necessary at all. The mischief that Custo is and Harbour Regulations for the dif- might be caused by land jobbing on the part of European officers is insignificant as compared with that resulting from the operations of native officers. Inquiry in the Straits Settlements would doubtless disclose the fact that, as in this colony, native members of the service with small salaries can count their wealth in very big figures If it is unobjectionable for a native officer to own a row of houses, we fail to see why it | King Johannes II. succeeded the late King, should be objectionable in the case of a European. If the thing is bad at all, it must be bad altogether. But we fail to see wherein the vice exists. Land has always been regarded as the safest form of investment, and

There are conceivable cases in which the fact of a man's being an owner of property might be held to render him ineligible for particular offices, but speaking of the service as a whole, the fact of the officers being allowed to invest their savings in landed property could, we think, exercise no prejudicial effect

Those who are already proprietors of land beyond this limit will receive : fair indomnity, the amount to be fixed by the Ad ministrator of the arrondissement within which the property to be expropriated is situated. Art. III.-Europeans may not proceed, fo purposes of trade, beyond the zone within which they are at liberty to acquire and possess land without the special authorisation of the loca Directeur of the Service, which they must immediately present for the visa of the Adminis trator of the arrondissement.

Such authorisations shall be valid only for one month. The Administrators are required to 8.48 p.m.-Japan Herald. -to observe that the prices demanded by traders from the natives do not exceed the fair value of the same articles in France with an addition of about 10 per cent. They are, for this purpose, vested with absolute power of valuation. Art. IV .- As regards purchases of rice made by Europeans from natives, any sale exceeding 300 gia, in order to be binding, must be approved by the Administrator of the arrendissement in which the seller has his domicile. Art. V.—Chinese account books shall be received in evidence on the same terms as Euro-Art. XI.—For the time being the provisions complete the work, as well as one half of the

KOBE TO YOKOHAMA OVERLAND.

As the overland-route to Kobe and vice versa becoming quite the thing to do now, by reason of the recently extended railway facilities, a page from the diary of a gentleman who has just completed the trip will be read with interest, as making everything easy to the intending traveller. He says :- We left Kobe (Saunomiya Station) at 6 a.m. on the 16th March. Asked for a first-class ticket to Nagoya, but were told that only second-class tickets were issued beyond Nagahama, so took a first-class ticket to the latter place. The trip across Lake Biwa occupied three hours and a half. The steamer which connects with the first train from Kobe is the largest and best. Tea-house girls met us at Otsu on the way to the steamer and asked if we wanted Bento. Asked if they could get a bottle of beer, they brought one on board the steamer, price 30 sen. Found; however, that Stock beer could be had on board. It was a perfect day for the trip on the Lake, the northern extremity being particularly beautiful, a circle of snowcapped hills forming our horizon. We called at Hakone for a few minutes only, and reached Nagahama at 1.30 p.m. Hotel-runners at once beset us there and asked to what tea-house at Nagoya we were going. Told them Shinkingo, and immediately our luggage was labelled for that hotel, a stamp showing the tea-house at Nagahama whose runner had forwarded us on. Asked at Nagoya if they were paid for this, and were informed no, morely "friend-pidgin." Hotel at Nagova exceedingly nice, being quite new, with silk futons, etc. Got foreign meals from a restaurant, nearly opposite, which had a sign-board "Seiyooryor." The food was fairly good, though badly served. Reached Nagoya at p.m. After dinner visited a theatre at which actresses from Osaka appeared. Three came on dressed as foreign ladies and brought down the house, the audience evidently enjoying the fact that a couple of foreigners were present. All the arrangements in the tea-house at Nagoya were very good. Asked the proprietor to telegraph to Hamamatsu that two foreigners were going by the evening train. He did so, and would not allow us to pay for the message Left Nagoya at 5 p.m. on the 17th and reached Hamamatsu at 9. Hotel runner waiting for us; tea-house named Ogomeya; foreign food obtainable. From Hamamatsu to Shizuoka-26 ri-engaged jinriksha at 2 yen each, with promise of 20 sen extra if the men went well This was for one man each kuruma ! for two men, 6 yen was asked, and the men did not care to go even at that. All along the road the common remark was, " How dear jimiksha have become since the railway was opened." Road rather monotonous and uninteresting, though, as my companion said, "You would have known it to be the Tokaido though you had struck it in New York." New hotel at Shizuoka Dailokan," a large tea-house with special rooms for foreigners, and foreign food obtainable Very interesting temple near Shizuoka which does not appear to be mentioned in Salow and Hawes' Guide, called Rinzaiji, where there is beautiful garden, and a young priest kindly show the Socialist ideal. If the facts we have adduced from literature are so strong where money is professedly of small account, what are they likely to be in those callings where it is the chief attraction? How many great mercantile projects, how many feats of engineering, how many triumphs of inventive work would have been achieved but for the loss of money?

It is surely as clear as day that to shear.
